Something About Gems.

Till the seventeenth century, at least, the superstitious aspect of gems constituted the chief interest of mineralogy. Marbodius is full of such things as the power of the chrysolite to drive away evil spirits, of the onyx to dispel sadness, of the heliotrope to confer the gift of prophecy, of the corals to avert storms and thunderbolts from fields or houses or ships. All these qualities go back, doubtless, to the remotest days of paganism, for they correspond in cearacter to those attributed to precious stones in the oldest extant poem on the subject, written by Onomakrites, a Greek priest of the fifth century, before Christ, and by him ascribed to Orpheus. One can understand that next or equal in importance to the value of a stone as a pledge of victory in battle would rank its capacity to insure to its possessor the fulfillment of his prayers addressed to the immortal gods, and this is what stands out in that work as their chief interest and purport. The supreme merit of the adamas, the crystal, the tree agate, the jasper, the topaz, and the opal is that the gods are impotent to resist the spell of their influence. Only let a man go to the temple with a crystal in his hand and none of the immoatals will refuse to hear his prayer.

And this introduces us to a large and interesting question. Did this belief in the power of minerals to influence the gods pass from pagan into Christian thought, and even into the services of the new religion? Is this the real origin and meaning of the great wealth of jewelry expended on shrines, crucifixes, and vestments in the Christian Church. During the Middle Ages, when all gems were designed to act as talismans, the sapphire at least must rest under strong suspicion of having been used magically in the service of the church. A decree of Pope Innocent III., in the twelfth century, ordained that for the future the sapphire should always be the stone used for the rings with which bishops at their investiture were wedded to the church. But why the sapphire? It has been suggested that the use of this particular stone had some reference either to the priestly garments, or in its color with the rest of the priestly garments, or in its supposed efficacy in assisting persons pledged to celibacy in the due and proper observance of their engagement. But it is more probable that the virtues formerly ascribed to the lapis lazuli, the ancient sapphire, should have been transferred to the stone since known by that name.—Gentlemen's Magazine.

LESLIE CAUGHT.

The Treasurer of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal Company, Who Stole $650,000, Behind The Bars.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Henry V. Leslie, the defaulting secretary of the Chesapeake and Delaware canal company, who with J. A. Wilson, a former treasurer of the same company, fled from the city in the early part of July of last year with a large sum of money belonging to the company, was taken into custody at noon to-day and locked up in the central police station for a hearing. He had lately returned here and was in hiding.

The loss was $650,200, of which $615,200 represented an over issue of the company's bonds and $2,000 in Lehigh Valley railroad bonds, and $35,000 in cash abstracted by the manipulator of the books.

Leslie acknowledged this afternoon his guilt of embezzlement of about $50,000, but disclaimed any connection whatever with the greater amount of which the company was defrauded. Wilson has been arrested in Toronto.

Railroad Matters.

CINCINNATI, June 20.—Henry S. Ives, who was here to attend a meeting of the stockholders of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad company to-morrow, stated in an interview published in the Times-Star, that the Baltimore and Ohio deal has not been properly represented. It is not the purchase of the Baltimore and Ohio by the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, but the guaranteeing of stock by the Baltimore and Ohio, and by an absorption in the great Baltimore and Ohio system of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton and its branches.

C. J. Kenshaw & Co. Ask for a Receiver.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 20.—Charles J. Kenshaw filed a bill in the superior court this morning against his partners, Messrs. Dewar and Eggleston. The bill asks that the partnership be dissolved and an accounting order granted and a receiver appointed. The court appointed Porteus T. B. Weare receiver, and that gentleman filed a $50,000 bond.

A Dynamiter on Trial.

QUEENSTOWN, June 20.—Peter Troy, who was arrested on board the Adriactic on its arrival here last week from New York on suspicion of having explosives in his baggage was up for examination to-day. He declared he received the package, said to contain the supposed explosives, to give to a man at Querteen. He was remanded for three days.

He Used a Hatchet.

CINCINNATI, June 20.—Adam Schwallzer, died from injuries received yesterday afternoon at the quarry back of Newport. He used a hatchet to open a keg of giant powder, causing an explosion, which tore his hands off and mangled him in otherways. An Italian assistant was also hurt but not seriously.

The jury in the case of Floyd, one of the Wyandotte train-wreckers, brought in a verdict of not guilty at Paoli Kan.

He Will Hang.

A LAD DROWNED.

Allie Van Houghten Drowned in the St. Joe River—Whisky Plays a Part in His Life.

Allie Van Hougten, a lad sixteen years of age, went bathing in the St. Joe river yesterday afternoon. He went into the water at the island some distance above Centlivre's brewery, with three companions. Young Van Houghten ventured into the stream and got beyond his depth in a dangerous hole. He was pulled down in the sort of undercurrent and after a struggle was lost to sight. The other boys gave the alarm and some time afterward the lifeless body was recovered and conveyed to Peltier's morgue.

There Dr. J. M. Dinnen, the coroner, held an inquest and ascertained the boy's name. He was a very handsome, promising youth, with a bright face and engaging manners. He has not resided here very long and of late has been employed at a restaurant, 251 Calhoun street, near the Railroad Y. M. C. A. rooms.

His home is at Newark, N. J., and he evidently left it to make a circle of the country. In a diary he kept an account of his doings and from its tone he was traveling a very rapid gait. On one leaf he wrote: "From Kendallville to Fort Wayne in a box car dead drunk." On another page he wrote "Drunk in a box car at Fort Wayne all day."

It is evident that the lad was wayward and it possible that his habits led him away from a good home to evade parental censure. Death called him quickly and his case is another one demonstrating the uncertainty of life.

Dr. Dinnen this morning received a telegram from C. H. Van Houghten, of Newark, N. J., saying, "Send body on." The doctor will comply when the expenses are guaranteed. In the meantime Mr. Peltier has embalmed the body for burial.

Looking up the Capitalists.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., June 20.—The county board of equalization summoned John C. Brockenbrough, of the Indiana National bank, before them and inquired if he was the agent for non-resident capitalists in Tippecanoe county. He said he was, but when the board asked him to furnish the names of the persons for whom the money was loaned, and to whom, he refused to comply. The board at once adopted a resolution setting forth the facts and turned the matter over to the prosecuting attorney. There are thousands of dollars of money belonging to eastern capitalists out at interest in this county and the board wish to get it on the tax duplicate.

Asleep in a Caboose.

RICHMOND, June 20.—D. M. Clark, of Johnson's station, Joseph Levi, of Marion, Ind., Isaac Longrecker, of Lynn, Ind., and J. R. Reaves, of Indianapolis, were brought here yesterday, the victims of a singular accident. They were asleep in a caboose car of a freight train, which with two other cars got detached at Florence and ran at a fearful rate towards Richmond. On the way they met a passenger train and a fearful wreck followed. Very strangely none of the men were killed and it is said they are not seriously injured.

The Chicago Boodlers Convicted.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The jury in the McGarigle-McDonald conspiracy case retired in the forenoon of Saturday and a few hours later brought in a verdict of guilty, fixing the punishment of the accused at three years each in the penitentiary. The defendants were sent to jail pending the decision of the questions of admitting them to bail and granting them a new trial. The jury was unanimous from the first as to their guilt, but two of its members stood out a while for a lesser punishment.

The Gas Well a Failure.

WABASH, Ind., June 20.—Natural gas well No. 2, located four miles from the city limits is a failure. The drill penetrated Trenton rock thirty-eight feet, and there was a fair flow of gas Friday, but the well is to day filled with water. It is evident that this well marks the north line of the great Indiana gas belt. Another well will be drilled a mile further south.

THE MARKETS.

The Prices From the Great Business Centers of the Country.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The stock market opened firm to strong, with advances from ¼ to 1 per cent., most dealings being in Reading, Pacific Mail, Lackawanna and Western Union. In these few stocks further advances were made during the first few minutes from ¼ to ⅜ per cent., but later no progress was made. The general list was too dull to fluctuate much, though a firm tone was noticeable throughout the list. At 11 the market was quiet and barely steady.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Wheat, 2@4c higher, moderately active: No. 2 red, 94¼@96¼. Corn, a shade easier, dull, at 47@48. Oats, quiet, steady, 34@41. Pork, steady, new mess, $15@15 25. Lard, dull, easier, $8 85. Butter, dull and weak, 10@13¼. Eggs, 15¼@15½c. Sugar, firm, crushed, 6¼c. Molasses, quiet. Coffee, dull.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The wheat market opened barely steady and shortly after the opening began there was a gradual declene. July wheat started at 72¼c and sold down to 71⅞c.

THE captive ballon proposed by M. G. Yon for the French exhibtion in 1889 will have the enormous volume of 60,000 cubic meters. The maximum altitude for the ascensions will be 1,000 meters, and it will be possible to take 100 passengers, a winding engine of 600 horse-power being employed. To preserve tightness, notwithstanding variations in temperature, another small balloon is placed inside the large one, and the volume of this small balloon, which is filled with atmospheric air, can be increased or diminished by pumping in or exhausting air by means of an air-pump worked by an electric motor on the car, the current being supplied by a twin cable from a dynamo on the ground.

DRIVEN TO DESPAIR.

A Wedding Prevented by the Attempted Suicide and Insanity Of the Bridegroom.

GLENVIEW, Pa., June 20.—On Monday last Walter Wade a bold and dashing stock and provision speculator came home from California to fulfill a promise of marriage with Miss Fanny Eckert, which was to take place at noon Thursday. The most elaborate preparations had been made and the relatives and friends of the young lady waited with every emotion of pleasure for the happy event. Wade's recent ill luck in the speculative field drove him to despair and rather than face the disapointment which would inevitably follow he attempted suicide on Wednesday, and now lies hopelessly insane at the home of his parents.

Dr. Dinnen will save his foot, but had to amputate the fingers of Mr. Bierbaum's left hand. It was a close call for the gentlemen.

The county commissioners should by all means make a call for an early election on the gravel road question before their adjournment Wednesday evening. They have before them a petition seeking the right to vote on the question of freeing and building gravel roads and the law guarantees to the people that privilege. The men who ask that favor represent the largest and heaviest taxpayers in the county and there is no reason why action on this important subject should be postponed when the men who bear most of the burden and cost of such an election ask for it. The commissioners will act wisely by granting this privilege to-morrow, as the law directs they shall, and costs, whatever they are, will be cheerfully paid. The question of free gravel roads is ripe for immediate solution and action.

AMONG THE SHOPS.

Items of Interest Gathered up and Recorded for the Benefit of the Men in These Busy Industries.

AT THE PITTSBURG SHOPS.

The Pittsburg shops in this city employ over 1,200 men, and any one happening in that vicinity at the close of the afternoon working hours, sees groups of them in every direction, with dinner pails in hand, hurrying to their homes. The magnitude of the works can be judged by the number of men that they employ and should the shops, for some reason, see fit to leave this city and locate at some point along the line of the railroad in the country, they would with their own employes alone make a city of at least 4,000 or 5,000 inhabitants.

The Pittsburg company are engaged in painting fences along the line of the railroad.

John Boylan has a position in the shop's carpenter force and is a reliable and competent man.

Engineer J. H. Sullivan and family, left to-day for a two month's visit among relatives in New York state.

A. H. Polhamus, the road foreman of the Pennsylvania, left with the mammoth engine "Duplex," going west this morning.

Tacony is at present receiving point for ties for the Pennylvania railroad. Every day over 2,000 are unloaded at that place, and it is estimated that before the end of the season 100 vessels will have brought over 300,000 ties for use on the various lines of the great railroad system. The larger portion of these ties are brought from Virginia on canal boats and schooners. These are divided into three grades, the best oak costing the company about 75 cents, slightly inferior quality 50 cents and the third-class, which are used only on siding, ranging in value from 20 to 35 cents.

AT THE BASS FOUNDRY AND MACHINE WORKS.

Henry Merrill, who was in the employ of the Bass works for about twenty years, and who resigned his position last spring to engage in other occupations, has again gone to work in the shops.

It is reported that Robert Hanna, the foreman of the machine shops, is to be married before long to a young lady living in the east end.

JOHN HENRY WERREMAN, of Pana, Ill., 106 years of age, was an unwilling witness to an assault of one citizen upon another in a billiard-room, by the use of a heavy billiard cue. While the attention of the other bystanders was directed to the prostrate victim of the assault, the old gentleman turned his attention to the assailant, and seizing him, when he attempted to escape, he held the man firmly until an officer arrived and took the would-be murderer in custody.

MONDAY, JUNE 20, 1887.

THE waters of the lake of Lugano have been most curiously affected of late. Usually the lake is most beautifully blue and clear, but recently the water became suddenly thick and yellow, while the surface was covered with a thick, greasy coating, smelling strongly of decomposition. This continued for some time, till heavy storms cleared and cooled the air, when the waters became blue and limpid again. It is supposed that through the recent earthquakes the bed of the lake had become affected and crevices had opened, emitting sulphurous gases.

WHILE the roof of St. Stephen's Orphan Home in Brooklyn was on fire the children were cared for by two of the Sisters and the other seven tore up the carpets and assisted the firemen in saving property. The figures of the Sisters flitted about noiselessly, and they worked with a vengeance, while the firemen drew lines of hose to the roof. By the time the water surged on the flames nearly every movable article had been safely stored by the active Sisters. But the roof of the building blazed away, and the flames were not extinguished until the covering of the top story was destroyed.

GENERAL SHERMAN, whose judgment on girls will not be questioned, speaks thus of Mrs. Cleveland: "She is a very remarkable girl, perfectly quiet and self-possessed, and absolutely without affectation, accepting the dignity of her position with almost a queenly graciousness. I thought her very like the Princess of Wales, and I told her so, and she was very much pleased. Mr. Bancroft, who is very fond of her, remarked to me that it seems impossible for any bachelor or widower President to be elected a second term, and we both decided we'd hate to have this pretty creature turned out."

PROFESSOR THOMAS, of Little Rock, has a curious library. The covers of the books are of wood, each a different specimen. The visitor picks up a book. He finds that it is a solid bit of wood in the shape of a handy volume. The books are made from white oak, red oak, black oak, chestnut, American beech, birch, red cedar, yellow pine, pitch pine, willow, poplar, cypress, "old field" or long-leaved pine, bois d'arc, black walnut, hickory (several varieties), white and red maple, box elder, black locust, black sumac, water locust, coffee bean, wild plum, holly, basswood, pawpaw, bay, umbrella, wild cherry, sweet gum, elm (several varieties), sycamore, witch-hazel, butternut, pecan, and twenty or more other woods.

THE recent decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Major Runkle is looked upon with interest by army officers, as it definitely settles an important question in regard to the right of the Secretary of War to act for the President in court-martial cases. In deciding that the action of Secretary Belknap in approving the sentence of dismissal in Runkle's case was illegal and that he is still in the service, the Court took the ground that the President, as Commander-in-Chief of the army, has been made by law the person whose duty it is to review the proceedings in court-martial cases where dismissal is involved. The President must himself consider the proceedings laid before him and decide personally whether they ought to be carried into effect. Such a power, the Court holds, the President cannot delegate. His personal judgment is required as much so as it would have been in passing on the case if he had been a member of the court-martial itself. He may call others to his assistance in making his examinations and informing himself as to what ought to be done, but his judgment, when found, must be his own judgment and not that of another.

THE badness of high-hued dies in hosiery is responsible for a curious incident at a recent fancy dress kettle-drum. The girls who served the tea wore peasant gowns which disclosed their ankles. Among the merry maidens was one young and pretty widow, as bewitching as they, and twice as audacious in a discreet way. Their sub-rosa conversation turned on their display of ankles, and the widow whispered to a companion: "I'll bet you a box of gloves that I will take off my stockings altogether, serve out tea for the rest of the afternoon with bare ankles, and nobody will discover it." The wager was made. An impromptu committee of the amateur peasant girls accompanied the widow to the dressing-room. It was very warm in the apartments and the stockings belonging to the costume were exceedingly gay in color. She drew off her hosiery. As she had calculated, her smooth skin underneath was imprinted with the pattern of the stockings, and in tints not much dimmed or blurred. When her slippers were put on again no unsuspicious spectator would have imagined that her shapely ankles were bare. She won her wager.—New York Truth.

A WATER company near San Mateo, Cal., is constructing a remarkable dam at the San Mateo canyon in order to form a reservoir. The canyon is very narrow and steep, and fifteen feet below the bottom is a solid rock, on which the foundation of the dam will rest. The structure will be 170 feet high, 175 feet wide at the base, 30 feet at the top, and 700 feet in length. It will be the largest stone dam ever known to have been built. The dyke will have a curvature of eighty feet, and the convex side will be up-stream. The material will be a new sort of concrete composed of stone. The walls will be perfectly smooth. The reservoir that will be formed by it and the adjacent hills will be about eight miles in length and 150 feet deep in the deepest places. Its capacity will be about 32,000,000,000 gallons. The water will be conveyed by tunnels to the city of San Francisco.

GEORGE BANCROFT, the historian, though in the 87th year of his age, is at work as hard as ever, writes a Washington correspondent. Few people thought he would sufficiently recover from his recent illness to be able to resume his labors. For a long time it was really doubtful if he would recover, but the wonderful constitution which has been his mainstay all through life, and which has enabled him to do a prodigious amount of work at all times, came to the rescue, and he is again in the harness. A few days ago he returned from his trip to the South, during which he visited the widow of President Polk and from her obtained a number of her husband's private papers and other documents of great historical value, and he has kept several stenographers busy transcribing the same at his residence in this city. It looks, therefore, as though the venerable gentleman is about to enter upon a new work in continuation, it might be said, of his former publications in American history.

STRANGERS who visit Charleston at this time, says the News and Courier, will find very few evidences of last year's "shake" except in the improved appearance of the houses, the number of new houses going up on all sides, with here and there a magnificent ruin like that of the Hibernian Hall, which, in the eyes of much-traveled Northern tourists, so closely resembles the ruins of Pompeii that it seems almost a pity to rebuild it. It will be borne in mind that over half a million dollars so generously and promptly contributed by the big-hearted American people has been spent in repairing the houses of those property-owners in the city who were unable to repair their own property. This amount represents, perhaps, about one-tenth of the loss inflicted on the city, the commonly received estimate being that between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 will be required to repair all the damage so far as it can be repaired. The amount spent has been divided out among the material men, mechanics, and others who are concerned in such work. That it has been productive of much good to the community there can be no doubt.

ONE of the most unique entertainments ever given in New York was a dinner of twenty covers that took place a few evenings ago at a well-known establishment, says the Brooklyn Times. The hostess, who is a widow, is said to be the richest woman in her own right to be found in the city, now that Miss Wolfe is dead, and certainly her feast was fit to set before a king. The table was superbly dressed with jacqueminot roses that, in addition to the immense centerpiece, were laid in loose bouquets from one end of the festive board to the other. The glass was of Bohemian ware, exquisitely decorated, and one service of plates had its Sevres border inlaid with turquoises. The menu and wines left nothing to be desired. But a wholly novel sensation was introduced when, at the conclusion of the repast, a magnificent chorus of male voices floated in to the accompaniment of a number of mandolins. The hostess led her guests into the adjoining room where the musicians were stationed. After listening to the sweet sounds for a while the company was invited to return for a moment to the dining-room. Here a still greeter surprise awaited them, for the long table had been pushed aside, and in its place stood ten little boys arrayed in the garb of cupids, their charming figures gracefully posed and the chubby hands of each minature god holding a bunch of roses, and a tiny silken casket like a jewel box. These favors were presented to the ten ladies. The boxes contained severally a pin-bag of embossed silver of the kind now so much in use on fashionable dressing-tables. There have been original dinners given in the metropolis this season, but it is safe to say that this one surpassed its predecessors. The entertainment is everywhere spoken of as the "Widows' Dinner," and all the women are wandering which of their sex will be the first to imitate it.

DYSPEPSIA

Causes its victims to be miserable, hopeless, confused, and depressed in mind, very irritable, languid, and drowsy. It is a disease which does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy to throw off the causes and tone up the digestive organs till they perform their duties willingly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven just the required remedy in hundreds of cases.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for dyspepsia, from which I have suffered two years. I tried many other medicines, but none proved so satisfactory as Hood's Sarsaparilla." THOMAS COOK, Brush Electric Light Co., New York City.

Sick Headache

"For the past two years I have been afflicted with severe headaches and dyspepsia. I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and have found great relief. I cheerfully recommend it to all." MRS. E. F. ANNABLE, New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. Mary C. Smith, Cambridgeport, Mass., was a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick headache. She took Hood's Sarsaparilla and found it the best remedy she ever used.

THE ORPHANS FAIR.

The attendance at Library hall last Saturday in point of numbers far exceeded the expectation of the managers. The tone and style displayed amid the brilliant electric lights and handsomely decorated booths was the best, without a question, of any similar occasion in Library hall. Elegant dresses, sparkling diamonds and pretty faces were noticeable all the evening. The receipts for the evening will exceed a thousand dollars.

The various stands did a thriving business and everybody seemed anxious to aid the good people who are working with perseverance to make the fair a great success.

THE SENTINEL would call attention to the many articles that will be dealt out in the grand gift distribution. The prizes are numerous and quite valuable, the principal one being a house and lot in this city. Tickets for this can be had at the voting stand.

Saturday evening's great interest centered in the contest for an easy chair among travelling men. The voting closed at 11 o'clock, with the following result: H. C. Giles, 13; Chas. Falk, 11; F. J. Noll, 30; Rie Shoaff, 83; Ben Fisher, 4,362½; Frank Purcell, 24½; L. J. Bobyla 1,667 1-2.

To-night a week, the excitement will run on the engineer's kit. The following is the showing on the board: W. Hilloker, 96; Geo. Mosher, 11 1-2; W. P. Mirris, 15; J. Sauers, 11; J. Denahy, 100; W. McPhail, 17; D. O'Neil, 43 1-2.

The contest for the Baker buggy, which closes Wednesday night, shows the following score: J. B. Barnes, 90; F. D. Cassanave, 130; Win Bash, 12; Sam Oppenheim, 82; Louis Centlivre, 111; G. W. Loag. 26 1-2; Herman Berghoff, 12; Will McKinnie, 87 1-2.

A new contest was opened for a gold chalice, with the following entries: Rev. E. Koenig, Rev. J. H. Brammer; Rev. J. H. Oechtering, Rev. A. Messman. This will be closed Friday night of this week.

The vote for the desk will be closed to-night. The score is as follows: Catholic Knight, 57 1-2; Benevolent Legion, 125. Excitement in this contest is growing. To-night's result is looked forward to with eagerness.

A visit to the hall is generally enjoyed. The brilliancy and decorations are a feature worth seeing. The pretty faces and smiles that greet the visitor reach his heart strings and he is glad to be among the happy people and the excitement of the hour. He spends his shillings for the lone born orphan and is happy in knowing that he has contributed to the happiness of others.

Delicate persons, and all whose systems have become debilitated, should bear in mind that Simmons Liver Regulator is not a drastic, purging medicine, does not weaken or deplete the system as other purgatives do, but acts gently. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, bnt is no intoxicating beverage to leave to intemperance; will promote digestion dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, of Ga., says: "Simmons Liver Regulator is mild and suits me better than more active remedies."

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable weapon like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub wakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

"Sometimes."

"Wull, thar wus a very mournful kerlamity doun our way las Chewsdy, an I hev writ hit up in prose, clappin a few wild, sweet, thrillin stanzers onto the tail-eend o hit. I useder be the Dingville reporter of the Tumbletown Tobacco-Worm, when I lived in Missoury, an the folks doun thar said I wus a bloomin ole daisy with a pen."

"Yes?"

"Yaas. The editor of the Tobacco-Worm sont me his sheet fer nothin, throwed in a passel o exchanges whenever I went inter his office, axed me ter take a guzzle o hot, steamin grog whenever he seed me, an handed me a dollar-bill whenever I wus dead-broke. He preciated my perductions, yo see, an I thort I might make like rangements with you uns, ef I becum a reglar contributter."

"Let me see what you have written."

He pulled a wrinkled roll of manuscript from his pocket, and read the following, in a high, raspy tone of voice:

"Las Chewsdy fornoon, ez Unkle Peleg Pratt wus a-splittin uv a cord of wood what he hed bought uv me at $6 a cord, his mule—the one with the scolloped ear an a lump on his left shank—sneakt up an let his hind hoofs heeve suddently tord the blue, wintry sky. Unkle Peleg happend ter be in the way, an his sole went a-soarin sunward, without a-pawsin ter trim hits wings. He leeves a weepin widder, ez purty ez a pink, an a hull passel uv young uns—nice chillun, all cept Bob, but he's a holy hummer, an I'll kick his pants ef he ever tize another bunch uv fire-krackers to the tale uv my brindle stear."

"Jist at this pint, mister," remarked my visitor, "the muse struck me right berlow the belt, a-causin me ter wind up the perduction with the follerin wild warble, wich, ef yore a feller o any jedgment, yoll pernounce ez peerless a thing ez wus ever trotted outn the throbbin interleck o morkal man. Jist listen to this flight o fact robed in the skinterlatin rajunce o fancy:

"Paws! Paws! Ye frivlous critters all—heer what I hev ter say:
Like Peleg Pratt, we one and all mus peter out some day—
Mus turn our toe-nales grandly up unto the dazies that Shell bloom above our morkal frame—like Unkle Peleg Pratt.
Ole Unkle Peleg wus the best old chap I ever knowed;
He hed full many a rastle, but he never hed been throwed:
He wus the sobrest man we hed—he only swilled a quart
A day, an yoll agree hit wus a very moddest snort;
Hed wallop any duffer thet ud tramp on his cote-tale,
An then serenely santer with the constable to jale.
Well miss him—oh, well miss him! an I spill a bilin tere,
Fer he bot full forty dollars wuth uv truck frum me each yere;
But now hes gone whur garden-sass no more hell ever buy;
(This salivates an incum upon wich I could rely);
No more his brave ole whisky-flask will be brot forth fer me—
No more his plug terbacker will be handed roun so free—
No more, no more—O, scruchin thort thet takes away my spunk—
Will he an I to Mudsock go an git upon a drunk.
Farwell, ole friend—a long farwell; but I mus eend rite here,
Fer wife is squawkin: 'Hit is time tor feed the brindle stear.'"

"Cant print it."

"Caint, eh?"

"No."

"See here, mister, do yo know who my relations be?"

"No."

"Wull, sir, my wife's cousin's husban is Jeems K. Polk Jinks, an he takes yer paper—yes, sir!—an Ill hev him discontinneryer durned ole sheet onless yo prent this pome frum A to Izzard."

"Cant help that."

"Caint? Wull, when yo see this here jewel a sparklin in the litterary firmament uv the Mudsock Mugwump, an see how hit shines like a star over the wild, terrific waste uv thet ar paper, yoll gnash yer teeth, by goll, an turn green with everlastin envy."

And with that he stalked out of my sanctum, so mad that I really thought he would chew his ears off in his rage.

"Old Zack's Logic."

No man in the country was more surprised than Gen. Zachary Taylor himself, when the Whigs began to talk of him as their candidate for the Presidency. He would not, at first, consent to stand, knowing his own disqualifications for the office. He was ignorant of political questions, and cared so little for party politics that he had not voted for forty years.

But the battle of Buena Vista had put his name on every man's lips, and the Whigs were determined to run a popular candidate. The unlettered, honest, simple-minded soldier was persuaded to "run," and during the campaign every school-boy became familiar with Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, Monterey and Buena Vista.

"Old Zack" took with the people, and they elected him with a large majority. Anecdotes of his firmness and simple habits impressed them with the belief that he would make a serviceable chief executive. One of these stories was that during the Black Hawk war, Col. Taylor, while pursuing the Indians, came to Rock River, then considered the northwest boundary of Illinois.

The volunteers declared they would not cross the river, as they had enlisted to defend the State, and were not obliged to march into the Indian Territory.

Orders came for Taylor to follow Black Hawk. The volunteers held a sort of town meeting on the prairie, and invited Col. Taylor to attend. He went, having previously ordered the United States regulars to form in the rear of the meeting. After listening for some time to the volunteer's speeches, he rose.

"Men," he said, "the word has been passed on to me from Washington to follow Black Hawk, and to take you with me as soldiers. I mean to do both. There are the flat-boats drawn up on the shore; there are Uncle Sam's men drawn up behind you on the prairie."

In a few hours the volunteers were all across the river, in hot pursuit of the foe. They saw that it was useless to reply to a man who argued in such a forcible style.

The people thought that a man who used that sort of logic was the one then needed to occupy the Presidential chair.—Youth's Companion.

A DUBLIN (Ga.) man describes a fight between an eagle and a buzzard. The struggle occurred about eighty feet in the air. Both contestants fell to the ground. The buzzard was dead. The eagle screamed twice very loud, and four young eagles came from a swamp a mile away. While they were tearing the buzzard away a hog came up attracted by the blood. The mother eagle cut one of the hog's ears close off its head and clawed part of its tail off.

When about the middle of the track she tripped and fell, the engine and caboose passing over her. It is thought that the fire box of the engine struck her, cutting the flesh about six inches on the right shoulder and back and tearing her clothes from her. There were no bones broken, but she may be injured internally. In any event her injuries, it is thought, will not prove fatal. After she was hurt she walked from the flag house to a wagon some fifteen feet away to be taken home. She was taken to the residence of her mother, Mrs. Anne E. Something About Gems.

Till the seventeenth century, at least, the superstitious aspect of gems constituted the chief interest of mineralogy. Marbodinus is full of such things as the power of the chrysolite to drive away evil spirits, of the onyx to dispel sadness, of the heliotrope to confer the gift of prophecy, of the corals to avert storms and thunderbolts from fields or houses or ships. All these qualities go back, doubtless, to the remotest days of paganism, for they correspond in character to those attributed to precious stones in the oldest extant poem on the subject, written by Onomakritos, a Greek priest of the fifth century, before Christ, and by him ascribed to Orpheus. One can understand that next or equal in importance to the value of a stone as a pledge of victory in battle would rank its capacity to insure to its possessor the fulfillment of his prayers addressed to the immortal gods, and this is what stands out in that work as their chief interest and purport. The supreme merit of the adamas, the crystal, the true agate, the jasper, the topaz, and the opal is that the gods are impotent to resist the spell of their influence. Only let a man go to the temple with a crystal in his hand and none of the immortals will refuse to hear his prayer.

And this introduces us to a large and interesting question. Did this belief in the power of minerals to influence the gods pass from pagan into Christian thought, and even into the services of the new religion? In this the real origin and meaning of the great wealth of jewelry expended on shrines, crucifixes, and vestments in the Christian church. During the Middle Ages, when all gems were designed to act as talismans, the sapphire at least must rest under strong suspicion of having been used magically in the service of the church. A decree of Pope Innocent III., in the twelfth century, ordained that for the future the sapphire should always be the stone used for the rings with which bishops at their investiture were wedded to the church. But why the sapphire? It has been suggested that the use of this particular stone had some reference either to the priestly garments, or in its color with the rest of the priestly garments, or in its supposed efficacy in assisting persons pledged to celibacy in the due and proper observance of their engagement. But it is more probable that the virtues formerly ascribed to the lapis lazuli, the ancient sapphire, should have been transferred to the stone since known by that name.—Gentleman's Magazine.

LESLIE CAUGHT.

The Treasurer of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal Company, Who Stole $650,000, Behind The Bars.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Henry V. Leslie, the defaulting secretary of the Chesapeake and Delaware canal company, who with J. A. Wilson, a former treasurer of the same company, fled from the city in the early part of July of last year with a large sum of money belonging to the company, was taken into custody at noon to-day and locked up in the central police station for a hearing. He had lately returned here and was in hiding.

The loss was $650,200, of which $615,200 represented an over issue of the company's bonds and $2,000 in Lehigh Valley railroad bonds, and $35,000 in cash abstracted by the manipulator of the books.

Leslie acknowledged this afternoon his guilt of embezzlement of about $50,000, but disclaimed any connection whatever with the greater amount of which the company was defrauded. Wilson has been arrested in Toronto.

Railroad Matters.

CINCINNATI, June 20.—Henry S. Ives, who was here to attend a meeting of the stockholders of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad company to-morrow, stated in an interview published in the Times-Star, that the Baltimore and Ohio deal has not been properly represented. It is not the purchase of the Baltimore and Ohio by the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, but the guarantee ing of stock by the Baltimore and Ohio, and by an absorption in the great Baltimore and Ohio system of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton and its branches.

C. J. Kenshaw & Co. Ask for a Receiver.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 20.—Charles J. Kenshaw filed a bill in the superior court this morning against his partners, Messrs. Dewar and Eggleston. CINCINNATI, June 20.—Adam Schwallser, died from injuries received yesterday afternoon at the quarry back of Newport. He used a hatchet to open a keg of giant powder, causing an explosion, which tore his hands off and mangled him in otherways. An Italian assistant was also hurt but not seriously.

The jury in the case of Floyd, one of the Wyandotte train-wreckers, brought in a verdict of not guilty at Paoli, Kan.

He Will Hang.

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—Maxwell, alias Brooks, the murderer of Preller, is to be hanged. The superior court reversed the decision. The prisoner was notified officially at 1 o'clock to-day by his attorneys of the decision and was very much dejected, saying that his trial was a farce.

A LAD DROWNED.

Allie Van Houghten Drowned in the St. Joe River—Whisky Plays a Part in His Life.

Allie Van Houghten, a lad sixteen years of age, went bathing in the St. Joe river yesterday afternoon. He went into the water at the island some distance above Centlivre's brewery, with three companions. Young Van Houghten ventured into the stream and got beyond his depth in a dangerous hole. He was pulled down in the sort of undercurrent and after a struggle was lost to sight. The other boys gave the alarm and some time afterward the lifeless body was recovered and conveyed to Peltier's morgue.

There Dr. J. M. Dinnen, the coroner, held an inquest and ascertained the boy's name. He was a very handsome, promising youth, with a bright face and engaging manners. He has not resided here very long and of late has been employed at a restaurant, 251 Calhoun street, near the Railroad Y. M. C. A. rooms.

His home is at Newark, N. J., and he evidently left it to make a circle of the country. In a diary he kept an account of his doings and from its tone he was traveling a very rapid gait. On one leaf he wrote "From Kendallville to Fort Wayne in a box car dead drunk." On another page he wrote "Drunk in a box car at Fort Wayne all day."

It is evident that the lad was wayward and it possible that his habits led him away from a good home to evade parental censure. Death called him quickly and his case is another one demonstrating the uncertainty of life.

Dr. Dinnen this morning received a telegram from C. H. Van Houghten, of Newark, N. J., saying, "Send body on." The doctor will comply when the expenses are guaranteed. In the meantime Mr. Peltier has embalmed the body for burial.

Looking up the Capitalists.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., June 20.—The county board of equalization summoned John C. Breckenbrough, of the Indiana National bank, before them and inquired if he was the agent for non-resident capitalists in Tippecanoe county. He said he was, but when the board asked him to furnish the names of the persons for whom the money was loaned, and to whom, he refused to comply. The board at once adopted a resolution setting forth the facts and turned the matter over to the prosecuting attorney. There are thousands of dollars of money belonging to eastern capitalists out at interest in this county and the board wish to get it on the tax duplicate.

Asleep in a Caboose.

RICHMOND, June 20.—D. M. Clark, of Johnson's station, Joseph Levi, of Marion, Ind., Isaac Longrecker, of Lynn, Ind., and J. R. Reaves, of Indianapolis, were brought here yesterday, the victims of a singular accident. They were asleep in a caboose car of a freight train, which with two other cars got detached at Florence and ran at a fearful rate towards Richmond. On the way they met a passenger train and a fearful wreck followed. Very strangely none of the men were killed and it is said they are not seriously injured.

The Chicago Boodlers Convicted.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The jury in the McGarigle-McDonald conspiracy case retired in the forenoon of Saturday and a few hours later brought in a verdict of guilty, fixing the punishment of the accused at three years each in the penitentiary. The defendants were sent to jail pending the decision of the questions of admitting them to bail and granting them a new trial. The jury was unanimous from the first as to their guilt, but two of its members stood out a while for a lesser punishment.

The Gas Well a Failure

WABASH, Ind., June 20.—Natural gas well No. 2, located four miles from the city limits is a failure. The drill penetrated Trenton rock thirty-eight feet, and there was a fair flow of gas Friday, but the well is to day filled with water. It is evident that this well marks the north limit of the great Indiana gas belt. Another well will be drilled a mile farther south.

THE MARKETS.

The Prices From the Great Business Centers of the Country.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The stock market opened firm to strong, with advances from ¼ to 1 per cent., most dealings being in Lake Shore, Missouri Pacific, Lackawanna and Western Union. In these few stocks further advances were made during the first few minutes from ¼ to 1 per cent., but later no progress was made. The general list was too dull to fluctuate much, though a firm tone was noticeable throughout the list. At 11 the market was quiet and barely steady.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Wheat, 2@6 higher, moderately active; No. 2 red, 84¼@86¼. Corn, a shade easier, dull, at 47@48. Oats, quiet, steady, 34@41. Pork, steady, new mess, $15@15 25. Lard, dull, easier, $8 85. Butter, dull and weak, 10@13½. Eggs, 15@16c. Sugar, firm, crushed, 6½c. Molasses, quiet. Coffee, dull.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The wheat market opened barely steady and shortly after the opening began there was a gradual decline. July wheat started at 72½c and sold down to 71.c.

The captive ball as proposed by M. G. Yon for the French exhibition in 1889 will have the enormous volume of eighty cubic meters. The maximum altitude for the ascensions will be 1,000 meters, and it will be possible to take 100 passengers, a winding engine of 600 horse-power being employed. To preserve lightness, notwithstanding variations in temperature, another small balloon is placed inside the large one, and the volume of the small balloon which is filled with atmospheric air, can be increased or diminished by pumping in or exhausting air by means of an air pump worked by an electric motor on the car, the current being supplied by a train cable from a dynamo on the ground.

DRIVEN TO DESPAIR.

A Wedding Prevented by the Attempted Suicide and Insanity Of the Bridegroom.

GLENVIEW, Pa., June 20.—On Monday last Walter Wade a bold and dashing stock and promotion speculator came home from California to fulfill a promise of marriage with Miss Fanny Eckert, which was to take place at noon Thursday. The most elaborate preparations had been made and the relatives and friends of the young lady waited with every emotion of pleasure for the happy event. Wade's recent ill luck in the speculative field drove him to despair and rather than face the disappointment which would inevitably follow he attempted suicide on Wednesday, and now lies hopelessly insane at the home of his parents.

His left hand was badly crushed and one of his lower limbs was bruised almost into pieces. The man however, got from under the wheels without further injury. Dr. Dinnen will save his foot, but had to amputate the fingers of Mr. Bierlaum's left hand. It was a close call for the gentleman.

The county commissioners should by all means make a call for an early election on the gravel road question before their adjournment Wednesday evening. They have before them a petition seeking the right to vote on the question of freeing and building gravel roads and the law guarantees to the people that privilege. The men who ask that favor represent the largest and heaviest taxpayers in the county and there is no reason why action on this important subject should be postponed when the men who bear most of the burden and cost of such an election ask for it. The commissioners will get work by granting the privilege to-morrow, as the law directs they shall, and seats, whatever they are, will be cheerfully paid. The question of free gravel roads is ripe for immediate solution and action.

She expressed the warmest thanks for the president's congratulations. A private reception of diplomats on such occasions is almost unprecedented but the American minister had expressed a desire through Lord Salisbury for such an audience and the queen replied it would afford her much pleasure to receive him privately for the presentation of the president's message.

AMONG THE SHOPS.

Items of Interest Gathered up and Recorded for the Benefit of the Men In These Busy Industries.

AT THE PITTSBURG SHOPS.

The Pittsburg shops in this city employ over 1,200 men, and any one happening in that vicinity at the close of the afternoon working hours, sees groups of them in every direction, with dinner pails in hand, hurrying to their homes. The magnitude of the works can be judged by the number of men that they employ and should the shops, for some reason, see fit to leave this city and locate at some point along the line of the railroad in the country, they would with their own employes alone make a city of at least 4,000 or 5,000 inhabitants.

The Pittsburg company are engaged in painting fences along the line of the railroad.

John Boylan has a position in the shop's carpenter force and is a reliable and competent man.

Engineer J. H. Sullivan and family, left to-day for a two month's visit among relatives in New York state.

A. H. Pothamus, the road foreman of the Pennsylvania railroad, with the mammoth engine "Duplex," going west this morning.

Tascoy is at present receiving paint for ties for the Pennsylvania railroad. Every day over 2,000 are unloaded at that place, and it is estimated that before the end of the season 100 vessels will have brought over 2,000,000 ties for use on the various lines of the great railroad system. The larger portion of these ties are brought from Virginia on canal boats and schooners. These are divided into three grades, the best oak costing the company about 75 cents, slightly inferior quality 50 cents and the third class, which are used only on siding, ranging in value from 20 to 35 cents.

AT THE BASS FOUNDRY AND MACHINE WORKS.

Henry Merrill, who was in the employ of the Bass works for about twenty years, and who resigned his position last spring to engage in other occupations, has again gone to work in the shops.

G. M. Feathey was at Rome City on Saturday and returned with a fine string of bass.

The foundry will commence running with a night force this evening and continue until the accumulated work has been disposed of.

The boys of the different departments enjoyed Sunday in fishing, picnicing, buggy riding &c. Most of them went to see their best girls last night, and a few—a very few, no doubt went to church.

It is reported that Robert Hanna, the foreman of the machine shops, is to be married before long to a young lady living in the east end.

JOHN HENRY WHERVEN, of Pana, Ill., 106 years of age, was an unwilling witness to an assault of one citizen upon another in a billiard room, by the use of a heavy billiard cue. While the attention of the other bystanders was directed to the prostrate victim of the assault, the old gentleman turned his attention to the assailant, and seizing him, when he attempted to escape, he held the man firmly until an officer arrived and took the would-be murderer in custody.

MONDAY, JUNE 20, 1887.

THE waters of the lake of Lugano have been most curiously affected of late. Usually the lake is most beautifully blue and clear, but recently the water became suddenly thick and veil low, while the surface was covered with a thick, greasy crusting, smelling strongly of decomposition. This continued for some time, till heavy storms cleared and cooled the air, when the waters became blue and limpid again. It is supposed that through the recent earthquakes the bed of the lake had become affected and crevices had opened, emitting sulphurous gases.

WHILE the roof of St. Stephen's Orphan Home in Brooklyn was on fire the children were cared for by two of the Sisters and the other seven tore up the carpets and assisted the firemen in saving property. The figures of the Sisters flitted about noiselessly, and they worked with a vengeance, while the firemen drew lines of hose to the roof. By the time the water surged on the flames nearly every movable article had been safely stored by the active Sisters. But the roof of the building blazed away, and the flames were not extinguished until the covering of the top story was destroyed.

GENERAL SHERMAN, whose judgment on girls will not be questioned, speaks thus of Mrs. Cleveland: "She is a very remarkable girl, perfectly quiet and self-possessed, and absolutely without affectation, accepting the dignity of her position with almost a queenly graciousness. I thought her very like the Princess of Wales, and I told her so, and she was very much pleased. Mr. Bancroft, who is very fond of her, remarked to me that it seems impossible for any bachelor or widower President to be elected a second term, and we both decided we'd hate to have this pretty creature turned out."

PROFESSOR THOMAS, of Little Rock, has a curious library. The covers of the books are of wood, each a different specimen. The visitor picks up a book. He finds that it is a solid bit of wood in the shape of a handy volume. The books are made from white oak, red oak, black oak, chestnut, American beech, birch, red cedar, yellow pine, pitch pine, willow, poplar, cypress, "old field" or long-leaved pine, iron bark, black walnut, hickory (several varieties), white and red maple, box elder, black locust, black sumac, water locust, coffee bean, wild plum, holly, boxwood, pawpaw, bay, umbrella, wild cherry, sweet gum, elm (several varieties), sycamore, witch-hazel, butternut, pecan, and twenty or more other woods.

THE recent decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Major Bankle is looked upon with interest by army officers, as it definitely settles an important question in regard to the right of the Secretary of War to act for the President in court-martial cases. In deciding that the action of Secretary Belknap in approving the sentence of dismissal in Bankle's case was illegal and that he is still in the service, the Court took the ground that the President, as Commander-in-Chief of the army, has been made by law the person whose duty it is to review the proceedings in court-martial cases where dismissal is involved. The President must himself consider the proceedings laid before him and decide personally whether they ought to be carried into effect. Such a power, the Court holds, the President cannot delegate. His personal judgment is required as much so as it would have been in passing on the case if he had been a member of the court-martial itself. He may call others to his assistance in making his examinations and informing himself as to what ought to be done, but his judgment, when found, must be his own judgment and not that of another.

THE badness of high-heel dies in hosiery is responsible for a curious incident at a recent fancy dress kettledrum. The girls who served the tea wore peasant gowns which disclosed their ankles. Among the merry maidens was one young and pretty widow, as bewitching as they, and twice as audacious in a discreet way. Their subdued conversation turned on their display of ankles, and the widow whispered to a companion: "I'll bet you a box of gloves that I will take off my stockings altogether, serve out tea for the rest of the afternoon with bare ankles, and nobody will discover it." The wager was made. An impromptu committee of the amateur peasant girls accompanied the widow to the dressing-room. It was very warm in the apartments and the stockings belonging to the costume were exceedingly gay in color. She drew off her hosiery. As she had calculated, her smooth skin underneath was imprinted with the pattern of the stockings, and in tints not much dimmed or blurred. When her slippers were put on again no unsuspicious spectator would have imagined that her shapely ankles were bare. She won her wager.—New York Truth.

A WATER company near San Mateo, Cal., is constructing a remarkable dam at the San Mateo canyon in order to form a reservoir. The canyon is very narrow and steep, and fifteen feet below the bottom is a solid rock, on which the foundation of the dam will rest. The structure will be 170 feet high, 175 feet wide at the base, 20 feet at the top, and 700 feet in length. It will be the largest stone dam ever known to have been built. The dyke will have a curvature of eighty feet, and the convex side will be up-stream. The material will be a new sort of concrete composed of stone. The walls will be perfectly smooth. The reservoir that will be formed by it and the adjacent hills will be about eight miles in length and 150 feet deep in the deepest places. Its capacity will be about 32,000,000,000 gallons. The water will be conveyed by tunnels to the city of San Francisco.

GEORGE BANCROFT, the historian, though in the 87th year of his age, is at work as hard as ever, writes a Washington correspondent. Few people thought he would sufficiently recover from his recent illness to be able to resume his labors. For a long time it was really doubtful if he would recover, but the wonderful constitution which has been his mainstay all through life, and which has enabled him to do a prodigious amount of work at all times, came to the rescue, and he is again in the harness. A few days ago he returned from his trip to the South, during which he visited the widow of President Polk and from her obtained a number of her husband's private papers and other documents of great historical value, and he has kept several stenographers busy transcribing the same at his residence in this city. It looks, therefore, as though the venerable gentleman is about to enter upon a new work in continuation, it might be said, of his former publications in American history.

STRANGERS who visit Charleston at this time, says the News and Courier, will find very few evidences of last year's "shake" except in the improved appearance of the houses, the number of new houses going up on all sides, with here and there a magnificent ruin like that of the Hibernian Hall, which, in the eyes of much-traveled Northern tourists, so closely resembles the ruins of Pompeii that it seems almost a pity to rebuild it. It will be borne in mind that over half a million dollars so generously and promptly contributed by the big-hearted American people has been spent in repairing the houses of those property-owners in the city who were unable to repair their own property. This amount represents, perhaps, about one-tenth of the loss inflicted on the city, the commonly received estimate being that between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 will be required to repair all the damage so far as it can be repaired. The amount spent has been divided out among the material men, mechanics, and others who are concerned in such work. That it has been productive of much good to the community there can be no doubt.

ONE of the most unique entertainments ever given in New York was a dinner of twenty covers that took place a few evenings ago at a well-known establishment, says the Brooklyn Times. The hostess, who is a widow, is said to be the richest woman in her own right to be found in the city, now that Miss Wolfe is dead, and certainly her feast was fit to set before a king. The table was superbly dressed with jacqueminot roses that, in addition to the immense centerpiece, were laid in loose bouquets from one end of the festive board to the other. The glass was of Bohemian ware, exquisitely decorated, and one service of plates had its Nereus border inlaid with turquoises. The menu and wines left nothing to be desired. But a wholly novel sensation was introduced when, at the conclusion of the repast, a magnificent chorus of male voices floated in to the accompaniment of a number of mandolins. The hostess led her guests into the adjoining room where the musicians were stationed. After listening to the sweet sounds for a while the company was invited to return for a moment to the dining-room. Here a still greater surprise awaited them, for the long table had been pushed aside, and in its place stood ten little boys arrayed in the garb of cupids, their charming figures gracefully posed and the chubby hands of each miniature god holding a bunch of roses, and a tiny silken casket like a jewel box. These favors were presented to the ten ladies. The boxes contained several a pin-box of embossed silver of the kind now so much in use on fashionable dressing tables. There have been original dinners given in the metropolis this season, but it is safe to say that this one surpassed its predecessors. The entertainment is everywhere spoken of as the "Widow's Dinner," and all the women are wondering which of their sex will be the next to imitate it.

DYSPEPSIA

Causes its victims to be miserable, hopeless, confused, and depressed in mind, very irritable, languid, and drowsy. It is a disease which does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy to throw off the causes and tone up the digestive organs till they perform their duties willingly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven just the required remedy in hundreds of cases.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for dyspepsia, from which I had suffered two years. I tried many other medicines, but never proved so satisfactory as Hood's Sarsaparilla." THOMAS COOK, Brush Electric Light Co., New York City.

Sick Headache

"For the past two years I have been afflicted with severe headaches and dyspepsia. I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and have found great relief. I cheerfully recommend it to all." MRS. E. F. ANDRUS, New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. Mary C. Smith, Cambridgeport, Mass., was a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick headache. She took Hood's Sarsaparilla and found it the best remedy she ever used.

THE ORPHANS' FAIR.

The attendance at Library hall last Saturday in point of numbers far exceeded the expectation of the managers. The tone and style displayed amid the brilliant electric lights and handsomely decorated booths was the best, without a question, of any similar occasion in Library hall. Elegant dresses, sparkling diamonds and pretty faces were noticeable all the evening. The receipts for the evening will exceed a thousand dollars.

The various stands did a thriving business and everybody seemed anxious to aid the good people who are working with perseverance to make the fair a great success.

THE SENTINEL would call attention to the many articles that will be dealt out in the grand gift distribution. The prizes are numerous and quite valuable, the principal one being a house and lot in this city. Tickets for this can be had at the voting stand.

Saturday evening's great interest centered in the contest for an easy chair among travelling men. The voting closed at 11 o'clock, with the following result: H. C. Giles, 13; Chas. Falk, 11; F. J. Nidi, 30; Ike Shoaff, 83; Ben Fisher, 4,362½; Frank Purcell, 24½; L. J. Bolyls 1,667 1-2.

To-night a week, the excitement will run on the engineer's hill. The following is the showing on the board: W. Hilliker, 96; Geo. Mosher, 11 1-2; W. P. Mirrie, Ed. J. Sauers, 11; J. Benahy, 100; W. McPhail, 17; D. O'Neil, 43 1-2.

The contest for the Baker buggy, which closes Wednesday night, shows the following score: J. B. Barnes, 90; F. D. Cassanave, 130; Wm Bash, 12; Sam Oppenheim, 82; Louis Centlivre, 111; C. W. Long, 26 1-2, Herman Berghoff, 12; Will McKinzie, 87 1-2.

A new contest was opened for a gold chalice, with the following entries: Rev. F. Koenig, Rev. J. H. Brammer, Rev. J. H. Oechtering, Rev. A. Meesman. This will be closed Friday night of this week.

The vote for the desk will be closed to-night. The score is as follows: Catholic Knight, 57 1-2, Benevolent Legion, 125. Excitement in this contest is growing. To-night's result is looked forward to with eagerness.

A visit to the hall is generally enjoyed. The brilliancy and decorations are a feature worth seeing. The pretty faces and smiles that greet the visitor reach his heart strings and he is glad to be among the happy people and the excitement of the hour. He spends his shillings for the lone born orphan and is happy in knowing that he has contributed to the happiness of others.

Delicate persons, and all whose systems have become debilitated, should bear in mind that Simmons Liver Regulator is not a drastic, purging medicine, does not weaken or deplete the system as other purgatives do, but acts gently. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to have to intemperance; will promote digestion dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, of Ga., says: "Simmons Liver Regulator is mild and suits me better than more active remedies."

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable weapon like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field and restore peace and healthy health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub wakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. A SANCTUM SCENE.

BY WILL M. KERNAN.

"Editor in?" inquired a tall, shaky individual, sauntering into my sanctum, and seating himself comfortably in a chair.

"Yes."

"Do you print locals in your sheet?"

"There is a rumor that we do."

"Am reckiry?"

"Sometimes."

"Well, that was a very mournful lecture you down our way last Thursday, an I hev sent bit up in poem, claspon a few will, cawse, thrilin stac'ers onto the tail-end o hit. I sended be the Dingville reporter of the Tumbletown Tobacco Worm, when I lived in Missoury, an the folks down that way said I was a bloomin ole daisy with a pen."

"Yes?"

"Yaas. The editor of the Tobacco Worm sent me his sheet fer nothin, throwed in a passel o exchanges whenever I went inter his office, axed me ter take a grankin hot, steamin grog whenever he need me, an handed me a dollar bill whenever I was dead-broke. He practated my perductions, yu see, an I thort I might make like range ments with you uns, if I becum a regler contributer."

"Let me see what you have written."

He pulled a wrinkled roll of manuscript from his pocket, and read the following, in a high, raspy tone of voice

"Lias Clawsby formerly, ex Uncle Peleg Pratt was a-sidtin on a cord of wood what he had brought on on all fo a cord, his mule the one with the scolloped ear an a lump on his left shank sneakt up an let his hind heels loose suddenly lord the bloo, wunky sky. "Just of this pint, mister," remarked my visitor, "the muse struck me right before the felt, a-causin me ter wind up the perdoo-tion with the fol-lerin wild warble, wich, of cors a feller a any jedgment, will permonnce ez peerl ez a thing ez was ever trotted owen the trail-bin meterick o mortal man. Just listen to the dadg-o fact robed in the skunk-skin raiment o Lore:

"Lias Clawsby, he frishus critter all boo

"Now I call the Peleg was the best old chap I ever knowed.

He had full many a rastle, but he never had
He was the sweetest man we had—he only

Not wantin any duffer that set tramp on his

An Uncle Peleg's ready pointer with the constable to

Well tell him on, oh, well make him! ez I spell a

For he let Fall Fever dollars worth ez track

But now he's gone wi'er garden-seas no more

"Great priest al."

"Carnt, eh?"

"No."

"Now here, mister, do yo know who my relations be?"

"No."

"Well, sir, my wife's cousin's husband is James K. Polk Jinks, an he takes yer paper yes, sir! an I'll ker him discontinuer-ver durned ole sheet unless yo print this pome from A to Izzard."

"Cant help that."

"Cant? Well, when yo see this here jewel a sparklin in the literary firmament av the Modesck Megrump, an see how he shines like a star over the wild, terrific waste av tiret ac paper, yell gnash yer teeth, in guil, an turn green with overbearin envy."

And with that he stalked out of my sanctum, so mad that I really thought he would chew his ears off in his rage.

"Old Zack's Logic."

No man in the country was more surprised than Gen. Zachary Taylor himself, when the Whigs began to talk of him as their candidate for the Presidency. He would not, at first, consent to stand, knowing his own disqualifications for the office. He was ignorant of political questions, and cared so little for party politics that he had not voted for forty years.

But the battle of Buena Vista had put his name on every man's lips, and the Whigs were determined to run a popular candidate. The uniformed, honest, simple-minded soldier was persuaded to "run," and during the campaign every school-boy became familiar with Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, Monterey and Buena Vista.

"Old Zack" took with the people, and they elected him with a large majority. An estimate of his firmness and simple habits impressed them with the belief that he would make a serviceable chief executive. One of these stories was that during the Black Hawk war, Col. Taylor, while pursuing the Indians, came to Rock River, then considered the northwest boundary of Illinois.

The volunteers declared they would not cross the river, as they had enlisted to defend the State, and were not obliged to march into the Indian Territory.

Orders came for Taylor to follow Black Hawk. The volunteers held a sort of town meeting on the prairie, and invited Col. Taylor to attend. He went, having previously ordered the United States regulars to form in the rear of the meeting. After listening for some time to the volunteer's speeches, he rose.

"Men," he said, "the word has been passed on to me from Washington to follow Black Hawk, and to take you with me as soldiers. I mean to do both. There are the flat-boats drawn up on the shore; there are Uncle Sam's men drawn up behind you on the prairie."

In a few hours the volunteers were all across the river, in hot pursuit of the foe. They saw that it was useless to reply to a man who argued in such a forcible style.

The people thought that a man who used that sort of logic was the one then needed to occupy the Presidential chair.—Youth's Companion.

If cruelty has its expansions and its remorses, generosity has its chances and its turns of good fortune, as if Providence reserved them for fitting occasions, that noble hearts may not be disconsolate.—Lamartine.

A DUBLIN (Ga.) man describes a fight between an eagle and a buzzard. The struggle occurred about eighty feet in the air. Both contestants fell to the ground. The buzzard was dead. The eagle screamed twice very loud, and four young eagles came from a swamp a mile away. While they were tearing the buzzard away a hog came up attracted by the blood. The mother eagle cut one of the hog's ears close off its head and chewed part of its tail off.

Investigation has shown that the consumers of Ivory Soap are almost entirely of the most intelligent class of the people; this, with the fact that over ten millions of cakes of Ivory Soap have been used the past year, confirms what Prof. Silliman, of Yale College, said: "The Ivory Soap is of remarkable purity and superior excellence."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

The Danville (commercial) says: "About 11 o'clock this afternoon a frightful accident occurred at the Wabash crossing. Engine No. 1003, with caboose attached, filled with workingmen, started from the depot to back up to Tilton. Mary Gee, aged about thirteen years, was coming west on Main street, and although warned by flagman John Meyers to stop, persisted in the determination to cross in front of the train. When about the middle of the track she tripped and fell, the engine and caboose passing over her. It is thought that the fire box of the engine struck her, cutting the flesh about six inches on the right shoulder and back and tearing her clothes from her. There were no bones broken, but she may be injured internally. In any event her injuries, it is thought, will not prove fatal. After she was hurt she walked from the flag house to a wagon some fifteen feet away to be taken home. She was taken to the residence of her mother, Mrs. Anne E. Gee, No. 309 South Jackson street, and a physician summoned."
